A LACONIC WOOER.

Mrs. Abigail Widgin, a buxom widow of four and forty, sat sewing in the winter sunlight which fell through the stand of geraniums and petunias before her sitting room window. A cheerful wood fire burned on the hearth, its flames reflected in the glistening brass fire dogs glistened only less brightly than the sunbeams themselves.

Mrs Widgin was a roly poly little woman, with snapping black eyes, cheeks like Baldwin apples and hair in which only a few white threads disturbed the raven gloss. There was an air of determination, it is true, in her firm lower jaw, but this was so overshadowed by the general posiness and jollity of her face as to be hardly perceptible, and even a close observer would have pronounced Mistress Abigail, as she sat placidly sewing in the afternoon sunlight, a dame as gracious as she was comely.

The clock in the corner ticked monotonously, the cat on the hearth rug alternately slept, and then, awakened by a sudden snap of the fire, awoke to purr lustily until drowsiness again overcame her. The widow sewed on with perfect composure and scarcely a firmer curve of the mouth betrayed the fact that she was keenly debating some important matter in her mind. Only from time to time her glance was raised to the dial, and when at length the sound of footsteps crunched on the snow without was heard, the quick, comprehensive survey which the black eyes made of the room indicated some desire that everything should be right and trig for the coming guest, and showed, moreover, that the newcomer had been expected.

A moment later and Tilly, the trim maid, had ushered into the room a dapper little man with a markedly legal air, shrewd, twinkling eyes, and a shining bald spot on the top of his head.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Sharperson," the widow said, briskly, rising with hospitable alacrity. "I began to fear you were not coming."

"Good afternoon," the gentleman returned, allowing his hand to be shaken vigorously.

"Sit down by the fire," pursued the widow, bustling about with the desire of doing something, yet not quite knowing exactly what to do. "It must be a cool day for all the sun. The snow crunches too much for one not to know that. You found it so, didn't you?" she concluded, knowing by experience that nothing short of a direct question was likely to elicit a response from the taciturn lawyer.

"Yes," he answered briefly.

"Uncommon cold, I should say," went on Mrs. Widgin, seating herself opposite her guest and spreading out her plump hands to the blaze as if talking of the temperature made her more sensible of it. "Colder than usual for the season, don't you think so?"

"Perhaps."

"Oh, it certainly is much colder."

No response.

"But then it is, after all, the time of year, when one expects severe weather."

Still no reply.

"'The days begin to lengthen,' you know the proverb, 'the cold begins to strengthen.'"

Still unbroken silence on the part of the lawyer, and the hostess was forced to abandon the weather for a more promising topic.

"You brought the papers for me to sign, I suppose, Mr. Sharperson."

"Yes,"

"Of course, you know that they are all right. I trust it all in your hands. I never did know anything about mortgages."

It was in Mr. Sharperson's mind that for one who knew nothing about legal documents the widow had managed her property with remarkable shrewdness, but it not being his custom to waste superfluous words by putting his thoughts into speech, he made no remark.

"I will sign whatever you tell me to," his client continued with really touching confidence. "It is hard for a woman to have nobody but herself to lean upon. I'm sure you don't know what I should do without you."

Again no response.

"I quite depend upon you."

Still no reply, unless a faint sniff, more or less scornful, might be so considered.

"Where are the papers?"

Mr. Sharperson rose with great deliberation, and from the green baize bag which, on entering, he deposited upon the table, produced a small package of legal papers. He turned again to the widow and fire, his eye dwelling appreciatively upon the cherry proportions of both, as, without speaking he handed the documents to Mrs. Widgin.

"Are there four of them?" she asked, with some appearance of surprise. "I only expected three."

"Four," he said, but he volunteered no further exclamation.

The widow unfolded the papers while the lawyer watched with professional narrowness, and as she looked them over the color flushed yet more in her somewhat florid cheeks.

"Did you succeed in selling that ten-acre lot to Mr. Woodhoffler?" she exclaimed. "How perfectly splendid! Why, Mr. Sharperson, I am positively getting to be quite an heiress. Isn't there some mistake?"

"No,"

"And the sale is really made?"

"Yes."

"For three thousand?"

"Yes."

"Mr. Sharperson, I have the greatest mind I ever had in the world to kiss you."

"Do."

The widow was so astonished at having elicited a monosyllable of such a character from the bachelor that she almost forgot to bridle, but fortunately remembered in time what was expected of her sex.

"Really," she simpered, "you are positively dreadful! I wouldn't have believed it of you!"

She paused to give him an opportunity of adding something more, but Mr. Sharperson had already exceeded the ordinary limits of his habitual reticence, and by a not unnatural recoil was now more silent than ever.

"I shall soon begin to look out for fortune hunters," remarked Mrs. Widgin, archly. "I hope you'll protect me from them when they come."

Mr. Sharperson's looks expressed such entire willingness to undertake the defense of his fair client that he evidently did not feel it necessary to put it into words.

"I don't know," pursued the widow, gazing abstractly into the fire, but I shall have to look about for somebody to take care of me. What do you say Mr. Sharperson?"

"I?"

"Certainly; you. You know my business affairs perfectly, and can advise me better than anybody I can think of. Now to be perfectly frank, what say you to my being married again?"

"Nothing."

"Oh, you think I ought not to talk so plainly about it. Well, very likely not, but you'll at least allow that there might be circumstances which would make it best for me to marry again."

"Yes."

"I've been a widow five years, and if the right man turned up——"

She paused with the secret desire to shake the gentleman opposite, to see if by that operation his taciturn tongue might not be loosened.

"If," echoed he significantly, as she paused.

"Why, of course," she retorted, "you will allow that there must be a right man somewhere, if one could find him."

"Yes."

"And perhaps," continued she, a mischievous smile revealing to the lawyer's eyes a quite new dimple, hitherto wholly unsuspected, in her cheek, "and perhaps you would even let me come to you for legal advice in my choice, if I paid well?"

"Certainly."

"Well, then, advise," cried the widow desperately.

She had been perfectly sure for two or three months that Mr. Sharperson was longing to propose to her could he but get the words over his tongue, and she had said to herself that this afternoon he should do it if feminine wit could devise a way. Anything short of deliberately proposing herself she was prepared to do and she began now to fear lest she should be forced to even that extreme measure.

Now when everything had been so admirably worked up to a speaking point for him, instead of uttering the decisive word the lawyer only smiled and was silent. To tell the truth he was as eager to get the important question asked as the widow, could he but overcome his natural laconic habit and the bashfulness which just now exaggerated it. Mrs. Widgin's mouth set itself a trifle more firmly than before.

"That is always the way if one really wants advice. If I didn't you'd probably be ready enough to give it." This was so obviously absurd that they both smiled, and both, pretending to move nearer the fire, moved their chairs a little nearer together.

"I see," Mrs. Widgin said with an air of mock despair, "I shall have to make it a catechism. Do you think I had better get married; yes or no?"

"Yes," he replied, with a significant smile.

"Have you any idea where I had better look for a husband.

"Yes."

"Good! Now we are getting on. Where is it?"

"Here."

"Here in Westerly? Oh, very well, Mr. Sharperson, but who is there in Westerly for me to marry? I assure you I wouldn't think of Mr. Smithers, with his five small children; I never could endure Mr. Green the tailor; I'm sure you don't mean me to marry Mr. Church, the butcher; and Mr. Stinchfield is too odius for anything. You see, don't you, that I can't marry any one of them?"

"Yes."

"Well, who is there?"

"Me."

"You!"

"Me."

It was done at last, and if the lawyer could but have so far conquered the habit of half a century of bashfulness as to follow up his advantage, everthing would have gone on swimingly.

He was, however, almost stupefied by his own temerity, and while the widow on her side of the fireplace cast her eyes down coyly, believing that now at least he would take the initiative, Mr. Sharperson on his side none the less abased his glances out of sheer bashfulness.

"Heavens thought the widow, slily reconnoitering out of the corner of her eye, "have I got to get up and rush into his arms? Was there ever so aggravating a man created?"

She coughed softly, she patted the hearth with her trim slipper tip, secretly determined that nothing short of the most absolute desperation should make her break the silence this time.

At length when there seemed an eminent prospect that the pair would consume the remainder of their mortal existence in staring wordlessly into the coals, and just as the widow reached that point when she felt that she must speak or go mad, Mr. Sharperson did renew the conversation.

"Well?" he queried.

"Well" she echoed.

"Eh!"

The lawyer was wholly unprepared for having the burden of the talk thrown upon him, and beyond this rather incoherent exclamation could say nothing. The widow looked at the fire and looked at her taciturn wooer.

"I must say," she observed, with a touch of sarcasm in her voice, "that I have seen more ardent lovers."

Mr. Sharperson looked rather abashed at this and indeed began to feel that if his suit for the rich widow's hand was to have any chance whatever of success it must be urged with more vigor. He aroused himself by great effort and with some warmth:

"That showed it more."

"Come," the widow thought with some complacency, "we are getting on: it is something to elicit a speech of that length from him."

Aloud she said:

"Very well, that showed it more, if you will. How am I to judge," she continued, smiling, and glancing up in a manner which no man with blood in his veins could have resisted, how am I to judge but by what I see?"

For reply Mr. Sharperson committed the most remarkable deed of his entire life. He rose from his chair with the utmost deliberation, took a step across the wide hearthrug to the side of his hostess, threw his arms around her with great heartiness and apparent satisfaction.

"Mercy!" cried Widow Widgin, making ineffectual efforts to disengage herself. "Who gave you leave to kiss me? I never saw such impudence."

But the other, having once tasted the sweets of her lips apparently enjoyed them far to well to abandon the feast so easily, and proceeded with unction to kiss her again.

"I declare," she exclaimed, yielding with good grace to what she evidently could not help, "by the way you go on one would actually think we were engaged."

Whereupon the lawyer gazed at her with great satisfaction and proprietorship shining in his twinkling black eyes.

"We are," he said.—Boston Courier.

"I HEAR you called on your girl last night, Earl," said a down-town youth to one of Avondale.

"Yes, I called," he answered, in a billious tone.

"Have a nice time?"

"No,"

"Did you see her."

"Yes, saw her leaving the house with another fellow just as I turned the corner two squares away."

To enter safely into the married state the contracting parties should understand human nature, and, above all, their own disposition, and then compare them frankly and candidly.

The first society for the exclusive purpose of circulating the Bible was organized in 1805, under the name of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

In a Panther's Claws.

A Bombay shikaree narrates how he once actually fell into the claws of a panther, and lived to tell the tale After describing the incidents of the hunt up to the time when the beast broke cover, he says:

"I had to wait until the panther was within a few feet of me, and I then put my rifle down to his head, expecting to roll him over like a rabbit [as I had succeeded in doing on other occasions,] and then placed my second bullet pretty much where I pleased. To my horror, there was no report when the hammer fell! The next moment the panther, with an angry roar, sprang on me. Hanging on with the claws of one forepaw driven into my right shoulder and the other around me, he tried to get at my head and neck, but I fortunately prevented this by raising my left arm, which he instantly seized in his huge mouth. I shall never forget his sharp, angry roar, the wicked look of the greenish yellow eyes within six inches of mine the turned back ears, his foetid breath upon my cheek, and the feeling of his huge fangs closing to the bone through my arm above the elbow.

"I endeavored, by giving him my knee in the stomach, to make him let go. Those who have ever kicked a cat can imagine what little effect this had. It was more like using one's knee for a football than anything else. The panther, with a roar, gave a tremendous wrench to my arm, hurled me some five paces down the side of the hill prone on my face, bringing my head in contact with a tree. Stunned and insensible, I lay some seconds on the ground, and the brute, thinking me dead, fortunately did not worry me, but, passing over me, went for the retreating police constable, who had brought me into difficulty. I remember when I came to, raising my head from the ground, leaning my forehead against a tree, and smiling with a certain feeling of satisfaction, when my eyes caught the retreating form of the constable and the pursuing panther down the hill, and I thought the policeman's turn had come.

"The civil surgeon of the station probed the teeth wounds in the arm, and found that at the back of the arm ran right to the bone and was an inch and a half deep. The two wounds on the inner side, in or close to the biceps, were, one an inch and a quarter and the other an inch deep. The claw wounds on the right shoulder were not serious, and had fortunately just missed the large artery near the collar bone, injury to which would have resulted in my bleeding to death in a very few minutes.

Two Americans.

Some years ago an emigrant from the United States kept a small restaurant in a town situated in one of the greatest stockraising districts of South Australia. He was presumably the only Yankee in those parts. There was an enormously rich old stockman who came into town from his lordly cattle ranche at intervals, whose nationality was a matter of doubt, though he usually passed for a taciturn and uncommunicative bachelor Scotchman.

One day this wealthy but solitary old chap entered the restaurant of the man from the states. When he left he looked hard at the proprietor, and simply remarked:

"American, arn't you?"

On being answered in the affirmative the millionaire cowpuncher walked away without another word.

Regulary once a week he reappeared, silently ate a hasty lunch, and made the same sterotyped inquiry, receiving the same emphatic. "Yes, siree!" in reply. At last there came a time when the eccentric old customer did not return. A month went by—two. At last a wagon stopped at the door, and the old fellow, pale and wasted with sickness, was helped out and supported into the saloon. He called for his usual steak with a weak but dogged determination, ate a morsel and then tottered up to the counter. As he paid his bill he whispered, hoarsely:

"American, aren't you!"

"You bet," replied the proprietor, pleasantly.

Stretching out his shaking hand, the odd customer said:

"Shake! So am I!"

Then he tottered away without another word. Three days afterwards a lawyer came into our young country man's place and told him that the queer old guy out on the Thompson range had died and left him a cool $1,000,000.

Santa Claus and the Mouse.

One Christmas Eve, when Santa Claus
Came to a certain house,
To fill the children's stockings there,
He found a little mouse.

"A merry Christmas, little friend,"
Said Santa, good and kind,
"The same to you, sir," said the mouse!
"I thought you wouldn't mind.

"If I should stay awake to-night
And watch you for a while,"
"You're very welcome, little mouse,"
Said Santa, with a smile.

And then he filled the stockings up
Before the mouse could wink—
From toe to top, from top to toe,
There wasn't left a chink.

"Now, they won't hold another thing,"
Said Santa Claus, with pride.
A twinkle came in mouse's eyes,
But humbly he replied:

"It's not polite to contradict,
Your pardon I implore,
But in the fullest stocking there
I could put one thing more.

"Oh, ho!" laughed Santa. "Silly mouse!
Don't I know how to pack?
By filling stockings all these years
I should have learned the knack."

And then he took the stocking down
From where it hung so high
And said: "Now put in one thing more;
I give you leave to try."

The mouse chuckled to himself
And then he softly stole
Right to the stocking's crowded toe
And gnawed a little hole!

"Now, if you please, good Santa Claus,
I've put in one thing more.
For you will own that little hole
Was not in there before."

How Santa Claus did laug and laugh!
And then he gayly spoke:
"Well! you shall have a Christmas cheese
For that nice little joke!"

Christmas Items.

The best Christmas presents are those that will beautify a home for a life-time.

Christmas is the only holiday of the year that brings the whole human family into common communion.—Charles Dickens.

It is good to be children sometimes, and never better than at Christmas, when its mighty Founder was a child Himself.—Dickens.

The only time in the long calendar of the year when men and women seem, with one consent, to open their shut-up hearts freely.—Dickens.

The Christmas cards this year are beautiful, and it is a pleasant custom to send them to friends, but the best card we know of, says the Mobile "Register," is one tied on to the leg of a turkey, with the name of some deserving poor man or woman written on it, who is not able to buy any Christmas cheer.

Watching the Children.

Each mother or teacher is an agent of Divine Providence, says a clergyman. Now, what is said of Moses holds good of any child. Each child is a great trust, and "she who guards and preserves one soul saves a whole world." Each mother and teacher, each tender guardian of a child ought to act as a messenger of Divine Providence, and who knows what influence she may be destined to wield by the task assigned her? Who can tell but she may be destined to mould the soul of a genius, who is to flood humanity with new light of Heaven, or to kindle a flame which is to reveal to the world new summits of bliss and rectitude? In order to perform their duties, parents and educators ought to manifest two chief angelic qualities. First—Patience in waiting and watching the child's progress, and, second, kindness and sympathy in penetrating and following up the nature of the child. Few mothers know how to deal with their children. The more love they feel for them the less patience they show. They want to mould and fashion them as though they were a piece of wax and had not a soul, an image of God, with an individuality of its own, which requires to be studied and found out. The chief fault in training lies in overdoing, in having rules and perscriptions ready to shape character, life, purpose and destiny of the child. Your cast iron moulds harm and ruin all genuine greatness.

A CANADIAN, meeting in Canada a gentleman from Louisville, kindly asked: "How is your health, and how did you happen to leave so flourishing a place as Louisville?" "Well," said the exiled Louisvillian, "it was very unfortunate, but I blame myself entirely. Instead of getting a city office I went into business. My necessities compelling me to steal, I stole. Then I had to git. If I could have got some place I could have stolen from the city I might have been at this moment a happy man, at home and in the bosom of my family. Stranger, if you ever go to the United States, don't go into business; go into politics!" The Canadian was so touched that he immediately loaned the gentleman from Louisville $5 and turned away to conceal his emotion.

Scholars are frequent to be met with who are ignorant of nothing save their own ignorance.

SATURDAY, February 21st has been set apart for the dedication of the Washington monument. General Sheridan has been appointed marshal of the day.

DR. Charles H. Bressler, of York, Pa., was nominated for the unexpired term of the late William A. Duncan, of the Nineteenth congressional district.

HON. L. Rhone, the assemblyman-elect from this county, has also been re-elected as Grand Master of the State Grange Patrons of Husbandry, at the late annual session of that body at Harrisburg.

Cleveland's Cabinet.

Bayard Tendered His Choice and Prefers to be Secretary of the Treasury.

ALBANY, Dec. 15.—Lieutenant Governor R. A. Campbell, Judge James Lindley, John G. Prather, member of the democratic national committee; John I. Martin, one of Cleveland's electors, and John G. Priest, of the national advisory committee, all of Missouri, called on the Governor this afternoon. They came to suggest the name of James O. Broadhead of St. Louis, for Attorney General of the United States The party afterward made a tour of the capitol.

When Senator Thomas F. Bayard came to Albany and paid his respects to President-elect Cleveland, it was understood that he left for home with the assurance that he could make his choice of any position in the cabinet and he would receive the appointment. It is said on good authority that having duly deliberated over the matter, the Delaware senator has sent a note to the governor, which was received yesterday, indicating his preference for the portfolio of secretary of the treasury department.

It is rumored that he will accordingly be appointed to the position.

Honoring Mr. Gorman the Chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee—Mr. Gorman's Address on the Victory.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11.—Seldom has such a representative gathering of public men been seen as that which met in the foyer of the Academy of Music in this city to-night at the dinner given by the business men of the city to Senator A. P. Gorman. About two hundred subscribers and invited guests were present, among the latter being Senators T. F. Bayard, Charles W. Jones, John R. McPherson, B. F. Jonas, Wade Hampton, L. Q. C. Lamar, Geo. H. Pendleton, Groome, of Md.; Vest, of Missouri; Camden, of West Virginia; Governor McLand, of Maryland; Representatives S. S. Cox, Geo. A. Post, Commander H. H. Gorring and Franklin B. Gowen, of Pennsylvania, and others.

The arrangements for the banquet and the decorations of the hall were of most tasteful character.

The first toast on the programme was "The chairman of the national democratic executive committee, a leader to whose thorough and skillful organization we are happily indebted for the brilliant victory of last November."

Hon A. P. Gorman responded, saying: "I thank you cincerely, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, for the kind manner in which the mention of my name has been received and for the tribute paid to such services as I was able to render in the November campaign. As chairman of the national democratic executive committee, I must share with many persons the credit which you give to me. My labors would have been wholly unavailing, except for the support, action and aid of the chairman and members of the national democratic committee. Their labor and mine would have produced no good results, unless, our common efforts had been sustained by the efficient work of the state, county and local committees in the debatable states of New York, Indiana, Connecticut and New Jersey.

"These committees, in their turn would have been unable to achieve victory without the powerful aid of the democratic and independent press and cordial support of multitudes of good men, of all opinions in these states All these efforts would perhaps, in turn have proved ineffectual except for the wisdom and discretion shown by the democratic and independent press and by all sympathizing with us, in the known democratic states Any act of imprudence or folly committed in those states would have endangered the chances of success in the debatable states. I recognize, therefore, fully that the honor which you (the representative business men of Baltimore) do me is, in truth the expression of your thanks to the host of men whose untiring and patriotic efforts enabled us to succeed in the great and memorable struggle through which our country passed in the autumn of this year.

"We may well congratulate each other upon the result. The administration of Grover Cleveland will fulfill the just expectations of all who have supported him. He has no need to make new pledges. He can safely rest upon the assurances given in his letter accepting the nomination for the presidency. His conduct as Governor of the state of New York is a sufficient guarantee that his promises will be observed. We may be assured that under his administration the county will be governed with wisdom and prudence and with the single purpose of promoting the welfare of the whole people of the United States."

The second toast, "State of Maryland," was responded to by Governor McLane. The third toast, "The democratic party, founded by Jefferson, associated with all that is glorious in the past, alive to every demand of the present, and every hope of the future," was responded to by Senator Bayard, of Delaware, whose appearance was received with strong demonstrations of gratifiations.

American Pork.

The New Administration Expected to Look Over the Matter in Germany.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—For some months past the subject of the admission of American pork in Germany has remained in statu quo, the inhibition imposed by the decree of March 6, 1883, still existing, and the German markets meanwhile having been effectually closed to American produce. Hitherto the contest against German discriminations has been urged alone in behalf of the American pork interests; but hostile measures in Germany having recently been threatened against American petroleum, a powerful combination of the two interests is now being formed looking to a decisive and determined stand by the new administration and the new congress in regard to both of these essentially important branches of American exports.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 16 1884.

The only man who has been prominently mentioned in connection with a place in Mr. Cleveland's Cabinet who is at all likely to reach the place, is Senator Garland for the Attorney Generalship. The Senator is not only one of the clearest headed men now in public life, but he is a most thorough and industrious student, who never spares a moment of time from the duties that attach to his position and the demands made upon him by a constituency that appear to recognize him as the sole representative of their interests. Mr. Garland has come to be recognized also as one of the best constitutional lawyers in or out of the Senate, and is as powerful in debate as any of the best forensic speakers that we have had in thirty years. He is just rising fifty years of age, so that he could not have reached more than thirty when he was a delegate to the Arkansas Secession Confederate Convention in 1861 and a member of the Confederate Congress the same year. At thirty-two he was elected by the Arkansas Legislature to the Senate, but that body [which now delights to do him honor,] refused to give him the seat. It was he who made the Test Oath case as to lawyers in the Supreme Court of the United States, and gained it over the combined opposition of the best legal talent in the country. In 1874 he was elected Governor of Arkansas without opposition, and made the best Governor the State ever had, and in 1876 when his name was mentioned for the Senate, he was exalted to that position without a single voice to say him nay.

Mr Arthur's chances for becoming a Senator from New York are rapidly waning. The difficulty that has existed between the Stalwart element and the Half Breed section of the g. o. p. since 1881, has not been adjusted either in New York or in Illinois, where Logan will undoubtedly be knifed to give Half-Breed Charley Farwell his place in the Senate. It is a little strange that Farwell and his friends should have looked on with complacency when Gov. Hamilton, the friend of Logan, was fixing up his decision in the Chicago fraud case, in the interest of Logan. The Illinois General Assembly, however, is exactly tied, and one Democratic vote would be necessary to elect either Logan or Farwell, and the latter is said to have captured that in the shape of a renegade Republican, who is to establish himself in favor when the Legislature meets. Lost in a Storm.

Great Loss of Life Among Oyster Men on the Rappahannock River.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—The officers of the steamer Mason L. Weems, which arrived this morning from the Rappahannock river, Virginia, reports a fearful loss of life among the colored oyster men on that river in the storm of Tuesday last. About twenty-five colored men were out in their boats tonging for oysters when the storm arose. The gale capsized most all of the boats and those which escaped were unable to reach the shore in safety.

The men were thrown into rough water and were unable to swim to shore. Many of them clung to the boats for a time, but were finally washed away and drowned. Very few of them escaped. Eleven bodies have been recovered already and as many more are said to be missing. It is scarcely possible that any of these latter have escaped death.

Additional intelligence from Rappahannock is that fifteen canoes started from the Lancaster side, above Urbana, to sell their oysters when the storm came upon them. There were three or four white men, and the whole number drowned was twenty-seven. Two more bodies, thirteen in all, were recovered near Mill Point, further down the river.

Money to be Made.

It is said that dull times are not known by the agents for the great publishing house of George Stinson & Co., of Portland Maine. The reason of this exceptional success is found in the fact that they always give the public that which is keenly appreciated and at prices that all can afford. At present we understand, their agents are doing wonderfully well on several new lines. They need many more agents in all parts of the country. Those who need profitable work should apply at once. Women do as well as men. Experience is not necessary, for Messrs. Stinson & Co. undertake to show all who are willing to work, not hard but earnestly, the path to large success. It should be remembered that an agent can do a handsome business without being away from home over night. Another advantage—it costs nothing to give the business a trial, and an agent can devote all his time, or only his spare moments to it. Stinson & Co. guarantee grand success to all who engage and follow simple and plain directions that they give. We have not place to explain all here, but full particulars will be sent free to those who address the firm; their full address is given above.

Convinced.

Mr. U. G. King, foreman of the Leetonia Democrat, Leetonia, Ohio, writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN, Columbus, Ohio, Gentlemen: Some time since, I had occasion to doubt the genuineness of most of the articles that appear in different papers in regard to your wonderful PERUNA, and my curiosity was so great that I determined to write to one of the many people that claimed to have been cured by this medicine, and accordingly wrote to Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, of New Lisbon, this county, and received the following reply." "I received your letter this evening, and in reply would say that PERUNA, I believe, saved my life, and I can not recommend it too highly; for all complaints it is the best medicine in existence. It seems to help you as you swallow it. I would advise any one suffering from my complaint to take PERUNA and be convinced. Yours truly, Mrs. J. W. Reynolds." Now, that's her card, word for word, and as I am well acquainted with the lady, I do not believe she would lie. It is truly wonderful how your medicine does do good.

James L. Mooney, Prospect, Ohio, writes: "For the past ten years I have been sufferlng from constipation and dyspepsia, and all the evil effects that accompany them. I was treated by a number of doctors, all to no effect. I used several patent medicines, which did me no good, and about three years ago I was seized with a severe nervous trouble, and was obliged to quit farming. I thought my days would soon be over, but last winter I received one of your pamphlets called the "Ills of Life." I at once tried your PERUNA and MANALIN. They helped me right away. I used nine bottles of PERUNA and three of MANALIN; and now I am quite well, and able to resume farming. I also had a little child which was attacked with a severe cramp in the stomach; we thought it would go into spasms. I used nothing but PERUNA. We gave it an injection of PERUNA and warm water, and gave it a teaspoonful of the medicine internally every half hour. It was relieved in one hour, and has not been bothered since. I have also used it with as good effect in case of croup and colds. I know that it is a wonderful medicine, and recommend it to all who are in poor health. The above statement I am willing to swear to."

W. M. Plants, Deep Valley, Greene county, Pa., writes: "Please send me your book on the 'Ills of Life.' I have used one bottle of PERUNA, and am greatly benefited."

—Our neighbor, Ad. Harter, is a splendid fellow on a treat. He frequently supplies the typos of the JOURNAL office with delicious apples. No doubt he believes in the good saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

—Every one has a will and a mind to think for himself, yet many will see at a glance that the announcement of Dinges, Trumpfheller & Co., in their new advertisement, is full of sound sense and their place will prove a mutal benefit to merchant and customer. Read it and judge.

—A party of hunters from Middleburg, Snyder county, while hunting in the mountains several weeks ago, lost track of three valuable dogs of the following description: 1. Little Red Beagle Hound, very friendly—answers to the name of "Fisher." 2. Black and white hound, over medium size, little white dots in dark. 3. Red hound (bitch) medium size, light spots above eyes—answers to the name of "Ship." Persons who may have any of these dogs in safe keeping are requested to report at this office. The owners will liberally reward the finders.

NOTICE.—The ladies of the Aaronsburg Reformed Mite Society will hold a musical convention in their church at Aaronsburg, commencing on Tuesday, Jan. 5th, 1885 and ending with two concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings following. The proceeds thereof are to be applied to the furnishing of the new Reformed church of Aaronsburg.

The convention will be conducted by Prof. J. A. Weaver, of Pine Grove Mills, Pa., and other musicians of celebrity are expected. Terms of admission are as follows: Season tickets, 50 cents; family season tickets, $1.00; Concert tickets, 25 cents and single sesion tickets, 10 cents.

The public are most cordialy invited to aid the worthy cause by their presence and influence.

—DO NOT crucify the children by compelling them to take the horrible, nauseous compounds usually sold as worm medicines many of them as worth less as they are obnoxious, but get a box of McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders. Purely vegetable. So easy and pleasant to take that the children will never know a medicine is being administered. You will in addition secure the very best vermifuge possible to produce. So sure are we of this that in all cases of failure to cause expulsion where worms exist we cheerfully agree to refund the purchase price. One Box of McDonald's Worm Powders guaranteed equal to four bottles of any worm syrup.

—We are extremely sorry to learn of the death of our former friend and brother typo, Mr. Edward L. Gray, editor-in-chief of the Bellefonte Daily News. For the last few years it was noticable that the dread disease, consumption, was telling on him, and although we in common with his nearer friends had hoped for his cure, the Almighty God saw fit to call his spirit home to eternal rest. Edward Gray always was a hard-working journalist, devoted his life principally to his profession, was a true and christian gentleman and a warm friend. Having been a young man of bright intellect and good education he would have made his mark in the journalistic field had he lived. He died at the residence of his step-father, Mr. E. T. Tuten, on Monday, December 8th, aged 29 years, 6 months and 19 days. We extend our heartful sympathies to the bereaved family.

—The Lutheran Sunday school will have its Christmas entertainment in the audience room of the Luth. church, Millheim, on Thursday evening, Dec. 25th, instead of New Year's evening, as had been arranged in the first place. A very attractive programme is being gotten up by the committee of arrangements and the public of town and neighborhood are cordially invited to attend the exercises. No admission will be charged. The programme will be published next week.

—IT IS in order now for every manufacturer to praise and extol the virtues of his cough medicine, and claim it ever so much better than any other. On square business principles the proprietor of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated Cough Medicine says if you are not satisfied with the relief and benefit obtained, if you do not consider it well worth the price paid for it then take the empty bottle to your dealer and get your money.

—Last Thursday evening, Mrs. Rebecca Royer, residing onemile south of Madisonburg, received a stroke of palsy, which partly paralized her and rendered her speechless. On retiring in the evening she enjoyed her usual good health, but could not sleep. She felt hungry and went to the cellar for a pie which she ate with great relish. Shortly after she began to feel badly and suddenly was overcome by the stroke. Her daughter-in-law heard the strange voice in the kitchen and found the invalid helpless and unable to speak.

Oysters! Oysters!! Oysters!!!—D. I. Brown has opened his oyster saloon, next door to his tinshop on Main street, and would respectfully inform the public that he is ready at all times to furnish them with fresh oysters, prepared to suit the tastes of his customers. The tables are constantly filled with the delicacies belonging to a complete oyster meal. Give him a call and be assured of the best accomodations. Do not forget the place—opposite Kauffman's store, Main street, Millheim, Pa.

A SETTLED FACT.—That the most convenient and agreeable place in town to buy a fine Christmas or New Year's gift is at P. H. Musser's Jewelry store. There you can buy the best Jewelry ever brought to this town for the least money as he will sell his excellent stock of goods at a small advance on cost. We advise our readers to examine his line of Gold and Silver Watches, Chains, Charms, Neck Chains, Rings, &c., before purchasing elsewhere.

ENTERTAINMENT. — The Green Grove Sunday school will hold an entertainment on Christmas evening, December 25th, 1884. No admission will be charged. A collection will be taken for the benefit of the school Rev. B. Hengst will conduct the exercises and good addresses will be made. This will be the first entertainment ever given by the school and everybody is invited to be present.

---FOR CASH---

Believing that the people of Centre county are fully awake to their best interests and that they have the intelligence to comprehend and the courage to recognize the means best calculated to bring about the most desirable results, we would most confidently and earnestly submit the following for your careful consideration:

That king credit has slain its victims by the thousands upon its extended battle fields is a fact beyond successful contradiction, and we would only ask you to call to your recollections your own observations, in proof of this fact, and the pitiful appeals of those still under the crushing heel of the tyrant fall upon our ears with unmistable certainty and we would say, come, let us rush to their rescue by wielding the sword of justice and striking the monster down with a decisive blow and keeping him there by eternal vigilance. This can be done only by a system which pays as well as demands CASH on delivery.

This system we will adopt and put into operation on the twenty-sixth day of December 1884, after which we will buy and sell positively for cash and produce only and will name such figures on goods as will fully convince every intelligent person that it is to their interest to buy their goods where KING CREDIT finds no quarter, but where the

is radically and permanently established and strictly adhered to. Kindly inviting and soliciting the co-operation of every one in giving this system a thorough trial, we are

The dome of St. Peters, at Rome, has been under repair for eleven years, and the work is only just finished. The whole of the vast cupola has been recovered with lead, chiefly given by pious Spaniards.

Many of the London street cars, which run on more than 400 routes and carry 75,000,000 people a year have texts of Scripture neatly posted up in them, at an annual cost of $2 50 for each. This is the work of a Lo ation formed for that p urpose.

"We have seen ondon associ- wonder by old Spurgeon, " it mentioned as a salt sea We Puritan writers," says that certain fish live in the and yet their flesh is not salt. have met with far greater singularities in the spiritual world, namely, men who live in a sea of grace and yet are not gracious."

All profitable, successful lines of business are special lines, so, if we would be earnest servants of God, we must be specialists. Having one thing to do, understand it thoroughly, and do it as unto the Lord, casting off the unprofitable works of darkness and putting on the armor of light.

Mr. Moody, speaking of his equable temperament and steady nerves, says: "I am never excited in my most exciting meetings. I can sleep like a top within three minutes of going into a meeting, and I can be sound asleep three minutes after leaving it. If I were to get into a state of nervous excitement I should have been dead long ago."

Hattie Snell, a thirteen-year-old girl living in St. Johnsville, N. Y., is the originator of an interesting scheme to build a church. The Episcopal Society were attempting to raise money to build a new church, and Hattie took a great interest in the project. She conceived the plan of obtaining aid from the statesmen at Washington, and she wrote letters to nearly everybody whose name appears in the Congressional Directory asking each to contribute a few bricks. Her plan was so novel and her letters were written in such childish ingenuousness that the responses were large. Among the contributors were President Arthur, all the members of the Cabinet, General Sheridan, Vice President Edmunds, Speaker Carlisle, many of the Senators, and a large number of Congressmen.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Franklin as a Bookseller

The following story, told of Franklin's mode of treating the animal called in those days a lounger, and in these days a loafer, is worth putting into practice occasionally, even in this age and generation:

One fine summer morning, when Franklin was busy preparing his newspaper for press, a lounger stepped into the store and spent an hour looking over the books, etc., and finally, taking one in his hand, asked the shop boy its price.

'One dollar,' was the answer.

'One dollar!' said the lounger, 'can't you take less than that?'

'No, indeed—one dollar is the price.'

Another hour nearly passed, when the lounger said:

'Is Mr. Franklin at home?'

'Yes, he is in the printing office.'

'I want to see him,' said the lounger.

The shop boy then informed Mr. Franklin that a gentleman was waiting to see him. Franklin was soon behind the counter, when the lounger, with book in hand, addressed him thus:

'Mr. Franklin, what is the lowest you can take for this book?'

'One dollar and a quarter,' was the answer.

'One dollar and a quarter! Why, your man asked me only a dollar.'

'True,' said Franklin, 'but I could better afforded to have taken a dollar then, than to have been taken out of the office.'

The lounger seemed surprised, and wishing to end the parley of his own making, said:

'Come, Mr. Franklin, tell me what is the lowest you can take for it?'

'One dollar and a half.'

'A dollar and a half? Why, you offered it yourself for a dollar and a quarter.'

'Yes,' said Franklin, 'and I had better have taken that then than a dollar and a half now.'

The lounger paid down the money, and went about his business—if he had any—and Franklin returned to the printing office.

Healing Properties of Water.

There is no remedy of such general application and none so easily attainable as water, and yet nine persons in ten will pass it by in an emergency to seek for something of less efficacy. There are but few cases of illness where water should not occupy the highest place as a remedical agent. A strip of flannel or a napkin folded lengthwise and wrung out of hot water and applied around the neck of a child that has the croup will usually bring relief in ten minutes. A towel folded several times and quickly wrung out of hot water and applied over the seat of the pain in toothache or neuralgia will generally afford prompt relief. This treat in colic works like magic, ameut known cases that have We have treatment for hours y resisted other minutes. There ield to this in ten so promptly cu s nothing that will the lungs, s short a congestion of as hot ore throat, or rheumatism, and water when applied promptly thoroughly. Pieces of cotton batting dipped in hot water, and applied to all sores and new cuts, bruises and sprains, is the treatment now generally adopted in hospitals. Sprained ankle has been cured in an hour by showering it with hot water, poured from a height of three feet. Tepid water acts promptly as an emetic, and hot water taken freely half an hour before bedtime is the best of cathartics in the case of constipation, while it has a most soothing effect on the stomach and bowels. This treatment continued for a few months, whth proper attention to diet, will alleviate any case of dyspepsia.

The "Cholera's Eggs."

The depth of the ignorance of some Italian populations has been curiously revealed under the cholera epidemic. The conduct of the Perfect of Reggio, it seems, was so surprising that he was called upon to resign his post, on which he remarked "that he could not deny the truth of the statements which has been made, but that one man in a province of idiots could not stem the current of folly." He then recounted some illustrative anecdotes, of which the following is one: A wag, as a joke, placed two eggs—a white one and a blackened one—before daybreak, at the door of a house, and then roused the inhabitants and told them they had the cholera at the door—the "cholera's eggs!" The terror of the poor people was frantic. The Syndic was immediately summoned, and h ordered the carbineers to surround the house, while the authorities took counsel what should be done. It was at length decided that a long pole, with a net attached to it, should be prepared, and this, with every precaution, was placed under the eggs, which were then carried, in full procession of Syndic carbineers and townsmen, to the Campo Santo, where the eggs were solemnly interred under a thick layer of quicklime. The "cholera's eggs being thus buried, the city breathed freely once more, and Syndic and soldiers returned to their quarters in peace.

True Story With a Moral.

Handsome Young Millionaire—"So you would like a position as companion to my sister?"

Pretty Girl—"Yes, please; I would do my very best to give satisfaction."

"Can you sing?"

"No, I am sorry to say."

"You play the piano, I suppose?"

"No; I never studied music."

"Ah! Probably, then, you paint crockery or——"

"It is needless to continue the list, sir; I have no accomplishments."

"Indeed? Why, how have you passed your time since you left school?"

"At home helping mother. You see——"

"Pardon me for interrupting. You have said enough and——"

"Oh, do not say I will not do. If necessary I can pick up some accomplishments in a reasonable time, I am sure."

"You will not do as a hired companion because you are entirely too good for the position, but if you will take half of my fortune and me with it, I shall consider myself the luckiest man in the world."

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chill more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are often used in nature so to be injured danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well.
